Medical Transfer and Partnership.

32, Ironmonger Lane, Cheapside.

MR. ORRIDGE, Medical Transfer Agent and Valuer, in offering his services to the Profession, has pleasure in referring to the fact, that for well nigh twenty-five years his name has been known in the advertising columns of the leading medical journals as that of one to whom a very large proportion of the medical men throughout the kingdom have confided their interests in the adjustment of Partnership and Transfers.

Mr. Orridge has the honour of being permitted to give reference to the testimony of those for whom he has been thus concerned during this lengthened period—a privilege that he trusts will be regarded as a conclusive proof of the sincerity of his endeavours to conduct these transactions in an honourable and straightforward manner.

He takes leave to point out that the instrumentality of his extensive connexion enables him to offer particular advantages in the furtherance of their respective objects to those who are about to receive partners or to relinquish or to commence practice.

He is fully aware of the evil of an undue publicity in negociations relating to Medical Practices, and every care is taken that particulars entrusted to him are submitted only to suitable applicants, the private nature of the information given being strictly enjoined.

Purchasers who will communicate (confidentially) the nature and extent of their wishes regarding investment can be apprised of appropriate opportunities as they occur.

On occasions where advice is required in forming a correct conclusion as to the worth or eligibility of a Practice, Mr. Orridge trusts that his familiarity with the various contingencies that govern value will be found of considerable service to those by whom he is employed.

DEFORMITIES OF THE HUMAN BODY.

BY

HEATHER BIGG, Assoc. Inst. C.E.,

56, Wimpole-street, Cavendish-square,

SOLELY APPOINTED

ANATOMICAL MECHANICIAN TO THE QUEEN & PRINCE OF WALES.

The want of a work exclusively devoted to the mechanical treatment of deformities, deficiencies, and debilities of the human body has long been experienced.

In his Manual of Orthopraxy the author has therefore sought to fulfil this requirement by bringing together in relation to the special cases to which they are applicable, all those varieties of orthopractic mechanism which from their success have hitherto been adopted in England, America, France, and Germany.

"Orthopraxy is not the substitute for, but the helpmate of, the physician and surgeon.'

[N.B. Candidates for the Degree of B.A., and candidates for the Degree of B.Sc. or of M.B., who have not graduated in Arts either in the University of Sydney, or in that of Melbourne, are required to have passed the Matriculation Examination.

The Matriculation Examination is among those Examinations of which every Medical Student commencing his professional studies after September, 1861, is required (by the Regulations of the Medical Council) to have passed some one. And it is accepted by the Royal College of Surgeons of England in place of the Preliminary Examination otherwise imposed on candidates for its Fellowship.]

There are two Examinations for Matriculation in each year; one commencing on the second Monday in January, and the other on the last Monday in June. No candidate is admitted to the Matriculation Examination unless he have produced a certificate showing that he has completed his sixteenth year. A fee of two pounds is paid at Matriculation. The examination is conducted by means of printed papers; but the Examiners are not precluded from putting, for the purpose of ascertaining the competence of the candidates to pass, viva-voce questions to any candidate in the subjects in which they are appointed to examine. Candidates for the Matriculation Examination are examined in the following subjects:—Mathematics; Arithmetic and Algebra; Geometry. Natural Philosophy. Chemistry. Classics: The Greek and Latin Languages. (One Greek and one Latin subject, to be selected one year and a half previously by the Senate.) The English Language: Outlines of English History and Modern Geography. The French or the German Language, at the option of the Candidate. Candidates shall not be approved by the Examiners unless they show a competent knowledge in—1. Classics; 2. The English Language, English History, and Modern Geography; 3. Mathematics; 4. Natural Philosophy; 5. Chemistry; 6. Either the French or the German Language.

MEDICINE.—BACHELOR OF MEDICINE.

This Hospital, founded by THOMAS GUY, in 1721, for the reception of 400 patients, and recently enlarged through the aid of a large bequest from the late WILLIAM HUNT, contains at the present time nearly 600 beds; and, with its extensive buildings and large airing grounds, occupies an area of about seven acres. The Hospital is divided into Medical, Surgical, Clinical, Ophthalmic, Uterine, and Venereal Wards, independently of separate rooms for special cases. In the year 1867, 80,334 persons were relieved by its means, 5295 as in-patients, 13,771 as out-patients, and 53,147 as casualties, besides 1727 women who were attended in their confinements, and 6444 who received advice for minor injuries. Between 400 and 450 patients are now received into the older buildings, and 150 into the part of the new wing already completed; the latter building, when finished, will admit upwards of 300 patients.

Wards containing thirty beds are devoted to Ophthalmic Surgery, and the patients in these have their special dressers and reporters appointed in the usual manner. About 2500 Ophthalmic cases are seen annually as out-patients. Recently the Eye Department of the Hospital has been extended, and a room has been fitted up for operating on the eye, and another provided with an ophthalmoscope for use of Students.

Gentlemen desirous of becoming Students must produce satisfactory testimony as to their Education and Conduct.

Out-patients with uterine and infantile diseases are seen by the physician-accoucheur on Wednesdays and Saturdays at one o'clock.

Cancer Department: Both in and out-patients suffering from cancer are admitted without governors' letters. The period of residence of the former is unlimited; the latter are seen on Thursdays at half past one o'clock.

Ophthalmic Department: Mr. Hulke sees out-patients suffering from diseases of the eyes on Tuesday and Friday mornings, at half-past eight o'clock.

Dental Surgery: Pupils receive instruction on diseases of the teeth, and the operations connected with them.

Post-mortem Examinations are made at two o'clock daily, under the superintendence of Dr. Murray and Mr. H. Arnott.

Three Clinical Prizes, including the Governors' Prize of 20 guineas, will be awarded to those students who shall pass the most satisfactory examination at the bedside and in the post-mortem room. Case Prizes will also be given. There are also valuable rewards in the form of six resident clinical appointments, for students who have completed their education and complied with the regulations of the School.

The College Tutor assists all general Students free of charge, especially those who are preparing for examination. His daily instruction is so arranged as to meet the requirements of junior and senior students respectively, and with a view to avoid the necessity for obtaining any additional private teaching apart from that of the Medical School.

General fee for attendance at the Hospital practice and lectures required by the Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons and the Society of Apothecaries, £90, which may be paid by instalments.

LONDON SCHOOL OF DENTAL SURGERY.

32, Soho Square, W.

(For Regulations of the Royal College of Surgeons relating to Professional Education of Candidates for examination in Dental Surgery, see p. 181.)

It was felt by the founders of the London School of Dental Surgery, that the opportunities afforded to the Student at the existing Medical Schools and General Hospitals, for the acquirement of a knowledge of those subjects embraced in an ordinary Medical education, could not be equalled by a special School; while, on the other hand, the opportunities offered by a special School in connexion with a Dental Hospital for the instruction of Pupils on the subjects which specially relate to Dental Surgery, would be much greater than could be secured in an institution devoted to general Medical education. Hence in the formation of the London School of Dental Surgery, provision was made for teaching those branches of science only which pertain specially to Dentistry; and the School was organized in connexion with the Dental Hospital of London, in order that practical instruction in subjects specially pertaining to Dental Surgery might be accompanied by systematic teaching, under the conditions enjoined by the Curriculum.

The Hospital was opened on Monday, October 3rd, 1859, for the reception of Pupils, who receive practical instruction from the Dental Officers, and when sufficiently advanced, are themselves intrusted with the treatment of cases.

The Lectures on the subjects specially pertaining to Dental Surgery (excepting those upon Mechanical Dentistry and Metallurgy) are given during the Summer Medical Session, in order that Students may be at liberty to attend at any of the existing Medical Schools those lectures enjoined by the Curriculum upon subjects which are not peculiar to Dental Surgery.

Dental Anatomy and Physiology (Human and Comparative): Mr. G. A. Ibbetson. Dental Surgery and Pathology: Mr. Samuel Cartwright. Mechanical Dentistry: Mr. Robert Hepburn. Metallurgy in its Application to Dental Purposes: Mr. G. H. ROYAL SCHOOL OF MINES.

DEPARTMENT OF SCIENCE AND ART, JERMYN STREET, S.W.—Established 1851.

Direct., Sir R. I. Murchison, Bart, K.C.B.; Regist., Mr. T. Reeks.

The chief object and distinctive character of this Institution (to which everything else is made subsidiary) is to give a practical direction to the course of scientific study. Although the education provided in it will not of itself qualify the student to undertake the direction of mining and other technical operations, yet the knowledge which he may acquire of the principles of the sciences on which the arts are respectively based will, in combination with future training, render him in the highest degree competent, not only to engage in any special branch of industry, but to promote its further development. The mode of instruction is by lectures, by written and oral examinations, by practical teaching in the laboratories and drawing-office, and also by field excursions, under certain conditions.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF CHEMISTRY.

315, Oxford Street. W.

The Royal College of Chemistry is the property of the Government, and its spacious and well furnished Laboratories are used for the instruction of the pupils of the Government School of Mines. The instruction in this Institution is under the superintendence of Professor E. Frankland, and consists of—

I. A course of Practical Analysis in the Laboratory.

II. A series of Lectures on General Chemistry.

The Laboratory Instruction, which is divided into a qualitative and quantitative course, is necessarily adapted to the previous knowledge of the student, such as he may have acquired by attending the chemical lectures delivered at the Institution. The course commences with experimental exercises, calculated to make the pupil practically acquainted with the general properties of the simple substances. The next subjects of his study are the analytical properties of the elements, and of their most important compounds. The knowledge thus acquired is subsequently put into practice in the performance of a series of analyses, so arranged as to lead the student, step by step, from the simplest to the most complicated cases, both of qualitative and quantitative analysis. Particular attention is paid to the use of the blowpipe, and the various methods of commercial testing, alkalimetry, chlorimetry, &c.

Each laboratory student works independently; there are no classes. All operations are superintended by the Professor and his assistants. A table, with drawers, cupboard, and shelves, is appropriated to every pupil. The Institution supplies gas, fuel, and re-agents. Larger and more expensive instruments, such as air-pumps, thermometers, barometers, condensers, large evaporating dishes, &c., may be had on loan from the Laboratory. The student has to provide himself only with the apparatus specified in the Laboratory Regulations.

The courses of Lectures are delivered in the Theatre at the College in Oxford-street. They consist of 70 Lectures, and treat of General Chemistry, with especial reference to its application in the arts and manufactures.

ROYAL INSTITUTION OF GREAT BRITAIN, ALBEMARLE-STREET, PICCADILLY, W.—Established under a Charter granted by his Majesty King George the Third, in the year 1800. Enlarged and confirmed by an Act of Parliament in the year 1810. Pres., Sir Henry Holland, Bart.; Treas., Mr. W. Spottiswoode; Sec., Dr. H. Bence Jones; Fuller. Prof. of Chem., Mr. W. Odling; Fuller. Prof. of Physiol., Dr. Michael Foster; Prof. of Nat. Philos. Mr. J. Tyndall; Asst.-Sec. and Keeper of Libr., Mr. B. Vincent; Clerk of Accounts and Coll., Mr. W. Hughes; Asst. in Lab., Mr. H. C. Hughes.

The Royal Institution is an association of individuals who are attached to Science, and desirous to promote its advancement.

Its chief objects are—

1. To promote scientific and literary research.
2. To teach the principles of inductive and experimental science.
3. To exhibit the application of these principles to the various arts of life; and
4. To afford opportunities for study.

The Royal Institution comprises—

I. Two Laboratories for the promotion and advancement of chemical and physical science, by experiments and original investigations. In these the researches of Professor Davy, of Professor Faraday, and of Professor Tyndall, extending over a period of above half a century, have been conducted. The laws of Electro-chemical Decomposition,—the Decomposition of the fixed Alkalies,—the establishment of the nature of Chlorine,—the philosophy of Flame,—the Condensibility of many Gases,—the science of Magneto-Electricity,—the twofold Magnetism of Matter, comprehending all known substances,—the Magnetism of Gases,—the relation of Magnetism and light,—the physical effects of pressure,—the absorption and radiation of heat by gases and vapours,—the transparency of our atmosphere, and the opacity of its aqueous vapour to radiant heat,—are the results of investigations carried on in the Laboratory of the Royal Institution during the last sixty years. In the Chemical Laboratory, formed out of the lower lecture room, Professor Frankland carries on his researches in organic chemistry. The cost of these investigations has been partly defrayed by the voluntary contributions of many of the members, who, in addition to their ordinary subscriptions, have formed a donation fund, to be expended by the managers in any way that they may consider most desirable for the promotion of experimental research. One member has already given nine annual donations of forty pounds each; and in 1863 the sum subscribed was £455 10s.; in 1864 the sum was £335 5s.; in 1865, £191 10s.; in 1866, £248 5s; in 1867, £136 10s.; in 1868, £127 5s.

II. Public Lectures intended to supply that which books or private instruction can rarely afford:—Experimental exhibition, highly illustrated delineation, or detailed descriptions of matters connected with science or art. They usually comprehend a short course at Christmas, and six or more courses, before and after Easter; the Season lasting from the middle of January to the middle of June. The subjects of these lectures are generally some of the different branches of inductive science—as mechanics, chemistry, heat, light, electricity, astronomy, geology, botany, and physiology. Courses are also occasionally given on subjects of general interest, as on literature, the fine arts, and music.

III. Weekly Meetings of the members of the Institution.—These are held on every Friday evening during the Session, and the members have the privilege of introducing two friends to them by tickets. The object of these meetings is to bring together men of science and literature, and to afford opportunities of communicating, by discourses in the theatre, either new views or new applications of known truths, and of demonstrating by experiment, and familiarizing by description, new results which have been recently recorded in the scientific memoirs of philosophical societies. Abstracts of these Discourses, prepared by the speakers, are printed in the "Proceedings of the Royal Institution," a copy of which is sent to the members. Volumes I., II., III., and IV. (1851 to 1866) are ready, price to members 7s. 6d., to non-members 10s. 6d. each volume, bound. The numbers for 1863 to 1869 are sold separately.

IV. A Museum, containing scientific apparatus of historical interest, mineral specimens, and other collections.—The chief object of this museum is to furnish apparatus for research and illustrations for the lectures and the Friday evening discourses.

V. A Library of about 36,000 volumes, including works of science,—the transactions of the principal British and Foreign academies and scientific institutions,—British history and topography, including the ancient chronicles, eminent modern historians, county histories, and many rare publications relating to these subjects,—works on literature, art, and antiquarian research,—the best editions of the Greek and Latin Classics and the Fathers of the Church,—British and Foreign literature,—and an extensive collection of historical and miscellaneous tracts, commencing with the sixteenth century.

The New Classified Catalogue of the Library (with a synopsis of contents and indexes of authors and subjects) embracing nearly a thousand pages, by Mr. Vincent, the keeper of the library, is sold (bound) to the members of the Royal Institution for 10s., to the public, for 15s. A list of the additions is printed annually, and sent to the members.

In the Upper Library will be found a collection of Encyclopædias, Dictionaries, and Scientific Textbooks, arranged to facilitate immediate reference.

VI. A Reading-room for Study.—In this apartment will be found many series of English, French, German, and Italian scientific Memoirs and Journals, and a great number of works on the natural, medical, and mathematical sciences.

VII. A Newspaper Room, in which the principal Journals, Magazines, and Reviews, English and Foreign, are regularly provided.

A Circulating Library is subscribed to, in order to afford the members an opportunity of seeing the newest books as soon as published.

 The Reading and Newspaper Rooms are open every day from Nine in the morning till Eleven in the evening. The Upper Library is open every day from Ten in the morning till Ten in the evening, except on the Fridays during the season, when it is closed at Four in the afternoon.

Terms of Admission: Gentlemen desirous of becoming members are requested to apply to the Secretary. Candidates, when proposed, are immediately admitted to the privileges of the Institution. They are balloted for at the next General Monthly Meeting, and pay on Election Ten Guineas (Five Guineas as the first Annual Payment, and Five Guineas as a contribution to the Library Fund); or Sixty Guineas in lieu of all payments. Members are admitted to ALL Lectures delivered in the Institution, to the Libraries, to the Museum, and to the weekly evening meetings. St. Peter's-pk. Paddington, W., and R. Thorne Thorne, M.B., 42, Seymour-st. Portman-sq. W.; Coll., Mr. W. E. Poole, 32A, George-st. Hanover-sq. W.

This Fund was instituted in the year 1836 to afford immediate pecuniary relief to distressed qualified members of the profession, their widows or orphans; and to grant annuities to the aged or disabled among them. The extent to which these objects have been attained may be estimated by the fact that the Fund has now 30 annuitants; and that during the past year £855 was expended in grants to 106 cases of urgent distress, in the majority of which no other resource was open. In addition to the relief afforded to the aged, blind, sick, and helpless, this Fund has aided in the bringing up and placing in situations of orphans, has given timely help to struggling widows and daughters, by which they have tided over temporary difficulties which would otherwise have overwhelmed them; and has, in many instances, enabled medical men, reduced to poverty by misfortune or illness, to resume practice and support their families.

There are also in connection with the Fund Six Cottages at Providence Place, Chippenham (the gift of Mr. Bailey); these are available for aged or disabled members of the Royal College of Surgeons of England, or their widows, having an annuity from the Fund, of at least 10*l.* per annum.

The Committee earnestly appeal to the Profession at large for renewed aid, by which the benefits of the Fund may be extended, and direct attention to the principles on which the Fund is managed. The applicants for relief or annuities have not the trouble and expense of a canvass, or the pain attending publicity. Relief is given as promptly as possible. The only expenses are for printing, postage, and stationery, and the Collector's percentage. The Committee meet at four p.m. on the last Tuesday of every month, except October, to receive applications; and when the evidence as to character and the reality of the distress is satisfactory, a sum proportionate to the urgency of the case and the means at the disposal of the Committee, is voted, and at once sent by the Treasurer.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer, Hon. Secretaries, or Collector, or by any of the Members of Committee or Honorary Local Secretaries.

The Asylum contains twenty-four residents, who are called Pensioners, each of whom is provided with three furnished rooms, and receives a pension of £21 a year, with a sufficient allowance of coals. In addition to the resident Pensioners, there are to be Pensioners who will have Annuities of £21, without residences. They must not be less than fifty years of age, at the time of their application for admission as Candidates, and their yearly incomes must not exceed £60. They will be elected in the first instance to Annuities only, and will succeed to residences in turn, as vacancies arise among the residents, providing that their circumstances are such as to render them fitting inmates of the Asylum.

The School contains two hundred resident pupils, the sons of Medical Men, fifty of whom, being the Foundation Scholars, are educated, boarded, clothed, and maintained, at the expense of the Institution; while the remainder (with the exception of a few Exhibitioners, who pay lower rates) are charged £45 a year each for an education of the highest class, board, washing, use of books, &c.

SOCIETY FOR THE RELIEF OF WIDOWS AND ORPHANS OF MEDICAL MEN, 53, BERNERS-STREET, OXFORD-STREET, W.—Instituted 1788; incorporated by Royal Charter, 1864. Pres., Dr. G. Burrows; Vice-Pres., Dr. P. M. Latham, Mr. J. Bacot, Mr. J. Miles, Mr. C. H. Hawkins, Mr. J. Paget, Mr. C. Hawkins, Mr. T. Hammerton, Sir C. Locock, Bart., Dr. H. A. Pitman, Dr. J. Clarke, Sir W. Fergusson, Bart., and Mr. H. Grant, Dr. F. Bisset Hawkins, Mr. H. P. L. Drew, Mr. Erasmus Wilson, Mr. J. Hinton, and Dr. F. G. Reed; Trusts., Mr. J. T. Ware, Dr. G. Burrows, Dr. G. H. Roe, and Dr. R. Renton, 2, Rosslyn-terr., Hampstead, N.W. Bankers, Fuller, Banbury, and Co., 77, Lombard-street, E.C.

This Society was formed in the year 1788, by Drs. T. Denman, R. Denison, A. Douglas, J. Sims, and J. Squire, and Messrs. W. Chamberlaine and T. Rendall, with the object of establishing a brotherhood for relieving, half yearly, those Widows and Orphans of its deceased Members who might need assistance.

It unites the advantages of a Provident with those of a Benevolent Society. It is Provident, as by the small yearly subscription of Two Guineas the Members do, through it, protect their own families from destitution, should they unexpectedly need it; and it is Benevolent, as its benefits are conferred only on those who are left in indigent circumstances.

The Society has been greatly assisted by legacies and contributions from Members and others, and has especially to acknowledge the gracious patronage of various members of the Royal Family.

The permanent efficiency of the Society depends on the maintenance of a due proportion between the available income and the claims made on the funds. Computations have been made by experienced actuaries on all the points susceptible of calculation by way of average.

The experience of seventy-six years has fully proved the need that existed for this Society, for the last Report shows that 149 widows, and 220 children of Members of the Society, (comprised in 157 families relieved,) have been placed in comfort by an aggregate sum of above 73,500*l.*, paid in half-yearly sums. Many of these recipients were in a state of absolute poverty, when the Society stepped in to succour them.

In the year 1868, 2504*l.* 10*s.* was distributed among fifty-two widows and twenty-seven orphans.

Great care has been taken, in the management of its resources, to secure the means of affording permanently such relief as the Society provides for those whose unfortunate condition renders assistance needful; and the good which it has accomplished has proved the wisdom and benevolence of those who originally planned the Society, and the prudence and efficiency with which its affairs have since been conducted.

The Society's affairs are managed by a President, twelve Vice-Presidents, three Treasurers, and twenty-four Directors, who are elected by the Members in April, and whose services are gratuitous.

All legally qualified Members of the Profession, residing within the County of Middlesex, or WITHIN THE LONDON DISTRICT POST, are eligible for proposal; the mode of admission is by ballot.

Proposal Papers, and other communications for the Court of Directors, should be sent to the Secretary before the first Wednesday in the months of January, April, July, and September. Laws, Lists, and Forms of Proposal may be obtained from the Secretary, and will be sent by Post on receipt of a Stamp.

The Secretary attends at the Office, 53, Berners-street, every Wednesday and Friday, from four to five p.m.
